Vice President Takes Oath in Father's Home, Vermont

New President on Way to Take Over Executive Duties

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Plymouth, Vt.—In a little living room of his father's home here, Calvin Coolidge early Friday took the oath of office as president of the United States.

The oath was administered by his father, John C. Coolidge, at 2:47 a. m., eastern standard time.

A telephone had been installed in the Coolidge farm house. Within an hour after word of the death of President Harding had been received and, by communication with Washington, the exact form of the oath was obtained.

In a clear voice the vice president repeated after his father the words prescribed by the constitution:

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States and I will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."

"Then, although the constitution does not require it, he added: 'So help me God.'"

The witnesses of the simple ceremony were Mrs. Coolidge, Congressman Porter H. Dale of Vermont, Edwin C. Gleason, Mr. Coolidge's secretary, Joseph H. Fountain, editor of the Springfield (Vt.) Reporter; Joseph M. McInerney, of Springfield, a federal officer; L. L. Lane of Chester, president of the New England Railway Mail association, and Herbert P. Thompson, commander of the Springfield post of the American Legion.

President Coolidge Prepares to Leave for National Capital

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Plymouth, Vt.—Vice President Calvin Coolidge became president of the United States at 2:47 a. m. today, when he took the oath in the living room of his father's farm house in this little mountain village where he was born.

Three hours earlier he had been notified of the death of President Harding and, in a brief statement, had expressed his grief at the passing of his "chief and friend" and his purpose of carrying out the policies "which he began for the service of the American people."

President Coolidge made immediate preparations to start for Washington. It was arranged that he should motor over to Rutland and take the 9:33 train, due in New York at 5 p. m.

A messenger who had hastened here from Bridgewater, the nearest telephone office, brought word of the president's death to Mr. Coolidge in the following telegram from George B. Christian, Jr., the president's secretary:

"The president died while conversing with members of his family at 7:20 p. m. The physicians report that death was due apparently to some brain embolism, probably apoplexy."

Mr. Coolidge's father, John C. Coolidge, received the message shortly before midnight and took it up stairs, where he read it to the vice president, who was in bed. Mr. Coolidge quickly dressed in a suit of black and came downstairs followed soon by Mrs. Coolidge. Shocked by the news but outwardly showing his accustomed calm, he dictated two brief statements to his secretary and then distributed copies to the newspaper men who had gathered in the living room.

New York—President Coolidge on his way from Rutland, Vermont, to Washington, will arrive in New York about four o'clock this afternoon. He will leave Troy N. Y. on a special train of the New York Central railroad at 12:45 o'clock.

shrined him in the hearts of the whole people," he said. "In his death the nation, indeed the whole world, suffers irreparable loss. All Americans are mourning today."

Paris—Myron T. Herrick, ambassador to France, when told of President Harding's death said:

"President Harding's death comes as another shock and a crushing blow to an over-tired and nervous world. It is a disaster of the first magnitude."

"I have known Mr. Harding for a long time. He was big hearted with a good brain, and he grew constantly stronger in office. His death is a loss to the whole world."

She said, however, that Mrs. Harding was far from collapse or hysteria and had made no evidence of emotion beyond the expression of her grief natural in the circumstances.

PRESIDENT'S BODY TO LIE IN STATE UNDER BIG DOME

(BULLETIN)

San Francisco.—The train carrying President Harding's body to Washington will arrive in Chicago Monday after a 72-hour run from San Francisco, which begins tonight at 7 o'clock. From Chicago to the national capital, the train will follow the Baltimore and Ohio tracks.

Washington.—If precedent is followed and Mrs. Harding desires to have Mr. Harding's body taken to the White House before it goes to the capitol, to lie in state under the great dome, the casket will be placed in the center of the great room, in the same spot where lay the bodies of Lincoln and McKinley.

Thousands of Americans will remember the great crystal chandelier with its myriads of cut glass pieces and electric bulbs and the rich but dimly decorated walls with the portraits of former presidents. It is probable not but the most intimate friends and members of the official family and of the diplomatic corps will be admitted there.

At the capitol, the catafalque will be placed on the spot where reposed the bodies of Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley and America's unknown soldier.

It was less than two years ago that President and Mrs. Harding bent over the same spot, laying a wreath in homage to the nation's heroic dead.

NEW COMPLEXITIES ARE THROWN INTO POLITICAL ARENA

GENUINE CONTESTS FOR NOMINATION SEEN IN PARTY.

AFFAIRS UPSET
Death of Harding May Turn Mere Ratification Into Two-Sided Struggle.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington.—President Harding's death throws new complexities into the political situation within the republican party, which undoubtedly will have far-reaching reflections in the national convention of next year.

It probably will turn what many expected to be merely a ratification of the political situation within the republican party, which undoubtedly will have far-reaching reflections in the national convention of next year.

One of the men regarded as his likely principal opponent for the nomination had confessed to a colleague that he found himself without an issue.

Issue Is Raised.

The president's pronouncement for entry of the United States into the world court, however, altered the situation.

During the last few weeks there has come definite information that all was not going to be as clear sailing as had been expected in the republican national convention and that there might be a contest after all.

There were days of discouragement in the first months of President Harding's term and on many occasions he expressed to close friends his wonderment why anybody wanted to be president with its trials and tribulations.

In one moment of disgust and discouragement, Mr. Harding had said to a close political friend who had held in reserve in the dark horse list during the convention of 1920:

"Do you want this job next year?"

time, if you do, you will be for you.

Urged to Carry On.

But his friends urged him to put discouragements aside and carry on. Mrs. Harding, also always urged him to put away thoughts of stepping down and being a candidate for re-nomination.

Mature deliberation among the old heads in the regular wing of the party developed a decision that if the republican party was to ask the American people to continue it in power for another four years it must do so on the record of the Harding administration.

Mr. Harding up to that time had permitted no authoritative report of his intentions to get out and delegation of the leaders went to the White House to find out about them.

"Warren" said the spokesman, "I've got to make some announcement of your intentions. These fellows who are opposing your nomination are growing; this one and that one, and before we know it, our wing of the party won't have anybody as a candidate and we'll lose political advantage."

Took Time to Decide.

"Boys," said the president, "I haven't made up my mind. I expect to make some speech in the west and elsewhere sometime soon and if the reaction is favorable, I'll carry on."

But that assurance failed to satisfy the committee of friends and advisers and they continued their arguments that Mr. Harding should make an announcement. Mr. Harding's renomination, they considered certain if he wanted it.

"All right, fellows," responded Mr. Harding with a characteristic wave of the hand, "I'll carry on, that's settled. I will carry on. Tell our fellows that."

A few days later Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, one of the administration spokesmen and party whips announced in the senate that if "Warren Harding wanted a renomination he was going to have it and that it was his duty to discuss a prospective contest."

Definitely Candidate.

Following that declaration the president was an avowed candidate for renomination and election and within a few days of his departure from Washington, he told a friend that, barring unexpected developments, he expected to be renominated and reelected.

"Unless something unforeseen comes up," he said, "such as a disastrous business panic, a period of great depression or something of that sort, I don't see anything that will prevent my renomination and reelection."

One of Administration?

The leaders still feel they must go before the country with an endorsement of the accomplishments of the Harding administration. The best informed feel they most likely will choose to do it with some member of that administration—someone who stood close to and for the Harding policies.

The late Tom Platt made Theodore Roosevelt a vice president with the openly announced purpose of putting him out of the way politically. He made him a president and one of America's national heroes. The case of President Coolidge is not analogous, but it is similar. Coming to the convention of 1920 with delegates pledged to his nomination for the presidency, Mr. Coolidge polled no high ballot and was soon left sight of in the race for the governorship of Massachusetts. When the leaders in that race collapsed and Harding shot through, a winner, Coolidge was still, lost sight of among the leaders but not among the delegates. The party leaders placed in nomination for the vice presidency, Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin. But the delegates remembered Coolidge and forced his name.

"Further, Governor, you will recall that some of the charges that were made on the floor of the senate were made on the floor of the senate and that the government of Wisconsin feels forced to hide behind a defense of this kind."

"You know as well as I do that you were forced into the newspaper in your charge. Inasmuch as some of those charges concern yourself, I submit that you should not be allowed to sit in judgment in your own case. Your political smoke screen is too thin. The people will see you."

"Your other suggestion that I take this matter into court is second handed and I think about won't out. Both Leggett and Newberry have used this same excuse before you discovered it. In Illinois, when they set about to investigate the deplorable conditions of the Lorimer crowd, and in Michigan when they set about to investigate the discredited Newberry, they both, like yourself, pointed to the court. It is unfortunate that the government of Wisconsin feels forced to hide behind a defense of this kind."

DEATH MESSAGE HEARD BY RADIO

Midnight Gazette Extra Spreads Sad News Throughout Southern Wisconsin.

It was 9:30 o'clock Thursday night when the Janesville Evening Gazette Extra was being printed. A few minutes later when a telegram was filed at Chicago for the Gazette and the telephone office here was closed. A few minutes later, just before ten o'clock, Richard Malone, of 1215 Mineral Point avenue, heard the news over the radio. He telephoned the Gazette. Shortly after midnight the Associated Press had got in connection with the Gazette and confirmed the story of the sudden collapse of the president and his death. With scarcely a warning, the whole nation got busy. Wires were opened in all offices. The Associated Press report came to the Gazette and several hundred afternoon newspapers all day and the news was spread all over the nation. Even a waiting world, was stunned at the news. Many had gone to bed and did not know the president had died until morning. The Gazette was the first to announce the death and many details of the scenes when the end came to the president. This was rushed to the public as the news where people were awakened from sleep by the cry of the Gazette newsmen and hundreds of copies were sold during the morning.

Janesville republican leaders expressed themselves as greatly shocked at the news of the president's death, as did the citizens generally. With national feeling, and realizing the great disruption that such a great national tragedy causes, they all expressed great sorrow for the loss of the man and for the loss of the leader.

Tribute from Whitehead.

"The president was a weary man," said John M. Whitehead, former state senator, Wednesday morning. "He had been on his feet for his official duties in a western trip. The people were eager to see and hear him as he journeyed across the country. He had wanted to give them a face to face. The strain on the kind heart was too great. Rest did not come, preparation rather than relief. He was too long, the demand upon his strength too exhausting, and human endurance was at an end. His mind and practically all his strength were used up. The vital force was too far spent. He had to lay down his life burden never to take it up again. His countrymen mourn his untimely passing with the deepest sympathy. Now that the president is dead, we begin to see him in his true perspective. We realize that a great man has fallen among us."

Successor Is Able.

More are mourning the death of Harding than they have ever since the death of McKinley, said Marshall P. Richardson, supervisor and prominent G. O. P.

"It is very pathetic. There is a close parallel here with the case of McKinley and Roosevelt. In each the successor to the dead president is a man of great moral courage. I have good reason to believe that Coolidge will make a great president."

Stanley M. Ryan, assistant U. S. district attorney, believes that the death comes at the most unfortunate time it could.

"The death of President Harding, who has proved himself the greatest friend of the American people, comes at a most unfortunate time, for the people of the country are just coming to realize his great worth, and to follow the wisdom of his policy," he said. "His death is the result of overwork. I believe that there never was an executive who realized more his great responsibility than did Warren G. Harding."

Similar regret was expressed by everyone.

BLAST OLD FOUNTAIN IN 4TH WARD PARK

The Fourth ward resounded with several explosions when a bunch of curiosity Thursday afternoon when workmen used several sticks of dynamite to tear down the old concrete drinking fountain in the Fourth ward park. The dynamiting was under direction of Constable William E. Dulin and special precautions were taken to prevent flying pieces of cement from damaging nearby houses. Manager M. A. Griffey of the water department, City Engineer C. V. Kerch and Street Commissioner Thomas McKinnis are cooperating in the rebuilding of the fountain so that it can be fed by one stream instead of six as formerly.

County Clerk Howard Lee said Friday. Orders for disbursement of funds in Rock county must be signed by the county treasurer, clerk and chairman of the board of supervisors. The practice has been followed for the past two years.

TRACK MEET HELD AT JEFFERSON GROUNDS

A successful track meet was featured at the Jefferson playgrounds Tuesday and some talent for the cinder path was uncovered. Some of the winners are Ray Parsons, Raymond Pagel, George Neumer, Mildred Blainberg, and Mildred Meek. Ice cream cones were given to the contestants. The playground directors are trying to install the idea that it is always worth while to put some effort in the game even though the prize be won by one's own else.

Walton Lane, Jefferson director, took 18 older children of that school on a hike Wednesday to the Three Mile creek. A picnic supper was enjoyed.

Another over-night hike will take place next Tuesday for the older boys of the Jefferson grounds and the girls' baseball team will hike up to the Ameripol cottage on the river leaving Saturday noon. They will return Sunday evening or Monday morning.

the most traveled routes through the city.

This is the first attempt to get actual figures on out-of-the-state visitors. The campaign is being directed from Madison and blanks with space for state and license number of each car have been distributed by the highway commission to garages, auto business houses and gasoline stations. The resources of the state commission, county commissions, Chambers of Commerce and citizens have been thrown into the effort to obtain an actual check on the cars, taking both state and license numbers. The figures will be the first definite indication of what tourists mean to Wisconsin.

Oscar Nelson, manager of the Chamber of Commerce here, is cooperating with the state department in distributing the blanks. John Sheldon was posted at the corner of Milwaukee and Bluff to watch cars on route 26 to Ft. Atkinson and 160 to Edgerton. Harry Parish took count on the Center street hill on the west side of the river on route 10 from Beloit, and Robert Brown took his figures from cars on the Evansville road, route 10, passing the tourist camp.

About 35,000,000 wooden boxes are required annually to pack the citrus fruit crops in Florida and California.

WINNERS SELECTED IN JR. PIG CLUB

Awards were made on swine in the junior club exhibit at the Rock county fair, Evansville, Thursday afternoon. The dairy and beef calves were judged Friday afternoon.

There was marked interest in the junior club exhibit for the tent and judging ring was crowded with people when Burlie Dobson, swine judge, tied the ribbons.

All the junior club pigs showed quality and would have been in the running in the open classes. The juniors were on hand early in the morning, a brush in one hand and an oiled rag in the other, fitting their entries for the show ring.

The three top winners in the breed contests were as follows: Chester Whites—William Ware, Thomas Drew and Loraine Porter; Poland-Chinas, J. Norum, Martell Griffith and Lawrence Blume; Hampshire, Toler Lund, Marton Woodstock, Herbert Miller, Raymond Miller and Leonard Woodstock and the placings in the Duroc-Jersey division were as follows: Donald Tierny, Helen Tierny, Paul Thornton, John Smiley, Orion Patzer, Dean George, Evelyn George, Esther Divine and Emma Divine.

These juniors will again compete in the junior club round-up at the Janesville fair opening next Tuesday.

PACKERS PAY BONUS ON CLEAN SWINE

During June, five Wisconsin packing houses paid $36,988 of this number infected with tuberculosis.

Michigan counties are the first to receive the 10 cents a hundred bonus for market since produced in an accredited county. The additional premium would help Rock county pork producers greatly during the hog market slump.

Don't forget to buy film for your Kodak tomorrow.

RECORD CROWDS THROUGH ROCK FAIR

With 7,000 people passing through the gates, the Rock county fair at Evansville came into its own on Thursday. It was the largest attendance at Evansville during recent years.

Weather conditions were favorable to support the new boosting spirit of the Evansville people. During the night there was heavy rain to stop threshing activities and as a result, the farmers flocked to the fair grounds. Stores were closed and it appeared everyone in Evansville and the adjoining district was on the fair grounds.

Once inside the gates there was something to attract a throng, for from the commercial and industrial down through the midway to stock judging ring, spectators eyed a renewed interest in the fair.

Grandstand Is Packed. The grandstand was packed during the day when the fire-works were set off when Prof. G. C. Humpl addressed the crowd. The Ston band played during the day.

The fire-works demonstration, Little of Jutland and Niagara featured.

Stock judging will be completed today evening and there were 3,116 entered, the largest number for the Evansville fair. Then the stock judging was a education in livestock breeding. The sheep and swine were judged Thursday afternoon and Friday morning and ribbons tied on all cattle. The Holstein classes completed Thursday, with the E. Swiss, Guernseys, Ayrshires and Jerseys, one into the ring Friday.

Great interest is being taken in the Rock county show, herds and the junior club exhibits.

Fair Officials Pleased. "The crowd Thursday was the largest we have had in the last 10 years," reported Dr. C. S. Ware, secretary. "There may have been a larger attendance years ago but the fair directors are pleased with the response made."

The New Glarus band played Friday and the Orfordville band will give the concert Saturday. John Jones, Jr., Wiscon. in commissioner of agriculture, will speak Friday evening.

Pony Show Premiums. The following premiums have been awarded in the Sletland pony show: Double drivers—Kenneth Cain, first; Martin Juleth, second; Louis Devine, third; single drivers—Harold Porter, first; Kenneth Cain, second; saddle pony—E. A. Boyce, Brooklyn, first; Nelson, Brooklyn, second; ponies under 14 hands high—Kenneth Wood, first, both in driving and saddle.

Red Crown

The High-Grade Gasoline

Adds to the Joy of Motoring

THE spirit of the day is to be out in the open; to seek the by-places; to get closer to nature; here today, there tomorrow.

Hard roads and automobiles have made it possible for one to do all of these things in the companionship of his family.

The chief contributing factor to motoring is gasoline—the chief joy of motoring is to know you have a dependable gasoline in the tank. Red Crown, the High-Grade Gasoline is dependable. The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) guarantees the uniformity of Red Crown.

With Red Crown in your tank your motor sings along the road; eager, purring, at a snail's pace or at high speed, as you please.

Red Crown is always the same, no matter where you get it, and you can get it everywhere—every few blocks in the city; every few miles in the country.

STATE TO PROVIDE TOURIST CAMPS

Sites on State Lands in Northern Wisconsin Will be Established.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Madison—Camp sites for tourists are to be established by the state conservation commission on state lands in northern Wisconsin, Elmer S. East, conservation commissioner, announced Thursday.

A demand for adequate camping facilities, more insistent with the great increase in tourist traffic, has led the conservation commission to make plans for definitely marked and thoroughly equipped camp sites, Mr. East said.

It is his plan to build up 16 of 20 camping centers, with running water, toilet facilities, camp fire equipment and other conveniences seldom to be found by tourists in their jaunts across the country.

These sites, according to Mr. East, can be located on state land bordering lakes, so that the tourists can swim and fish, enjoying the best that Wisconsin has to offer. Game and bird gardens would, however, be kept them in order for the travelers.

Thousands of tourists each season pass through the great tracts of state lands in the northern counties. Mr. East said. They often need camp sites, that have been lacking in the past. It is our intention to meet this need adequately, and within a short time.

Mr. East expressed himself as opposed to the leasing system now in effect by which individuals are allowed to acquire large tracts of state land bordering lakes. Some persons acquainted with the workings of the state law have acquired frontage of 500 feet on several of the best lakes located on state lands for nominal prices, according to the conservation commissioner.

By this means they are shutting the lakes out from the public, he declared. Mr. East recommended the termination of the lease system and the issuance of short time permits for small amounts of lake frontage to be used by individuals. Under the present system it costs more to look after the state interests on leased land than is obtained from the leases, he declared.

It is Cubic Feet of Expansion You Buy

YOUR pistons are pushed only by the expansive force of exploding gas. That's the measure of your fuel value — not the liquid gallon paid for at the pump.

Poor motor fuel constantly gives short measures of expansion. It resists caburetion, carries over suspended particles of wet kerosene, and when fired, it expands in a gappy succession of broken jumps. Slightly lower cost per gallon is sorry compensation for the motoring discomfort and the downright damage it causes.

Wadham's True Gasoline

costs far less in the final power terms of expansion. It yields full measure of resistless, crowding energy, clear to the end of the stroke — unbroken by "thin spots" and gaps and untainted by soggy, harmful kerosene. Every explosion is an outreaching avalanche of eager, unfettered power. Its long-run economy benefits your purse, while its goodness satisfies every sense of motoring luxury.

FINE EXHIBITS AT COUNTY FAIR

Various Divisions for Work of Women and Children Attract Many Good Entries.

(By MRS. ADDIE HELMS)

With the hearty cooperation of its citizens—public spirited business men, club women, school children and the villagers in general—Evansville puts on a fair each year that is something more than a pumpkin show, and is in truth a real home town festival. With its humble beginnings a quarter of a century ago, as a neighborhood gathering in a tent, it has grown to impressive size, but has never lost its friendly cooperative spirit, while the sons and daughters of the old time leaders in the community have stepped into the shoes of their fathers and mothers, and admirably carry on the enterprise. It is a time when the inhabitants of the trim little village bring out their best products for inspection, compare notes on cooking recipes, and admire the work of their neighbors in the fancy work line, or the handwork of their children in the schools, all the time having a friendly visit and meeting old friends. While most of the exhibitors this year were from Evansville or vicinity, many other places in Rock county had representatives, the following names being listed from Janesville: Edith and Alice Clark, James and Thomas Diew, Marjorie Hooper, Helen and Mary, Mrs. L. D. Cannon, J. J. McCann and sons, the Boyce brothers and the Rock county herd.

Floral Exhibit, Larger.

The women are especially interested in flowers and plants, and the exhibit in this line was larger than usual. Mrs. O. C. Jones served as superintendent. The following are some of the prize winners as announced on Thursday: Bouquet, Mrs. H. Graves, first; and E. Nance, second. Nasturtiums, Mary Glasser and Mrs. Jas. Lay, Stocks, Katy Noyes, Gladiolus, Alton Allen, and Mrs. Fred Jones. Mrs. Jones also secured a prize on zinnias, second on dahlias, and first on a basket. Mrs. R. E. Seales secured many prizes, getting first on a fine collection of plants, first on dahlias, second on pansies, overhanging flowers, snapdragons, marigolds and fuchsias. The last was an unusually choice specimen plant. Mrs. Rasmus Anderson receiving second on one of her good Mrs. T. H. Gorrell received first on ferns and perennials; Mrs. J. T. Hooper first on phlox, and Mrs. F. A. Franklin, second. Mrs. C. W. Powles, got first on zinnias.

Culinary Competition Good.

The cookery exhibit embraced a large variety of pies, cakes and breadstuffs. Mrs. W. E. Schneider being in charge, and Mrs. Lloyd Hubbard, second. Mrs. Durr being judges. Mrs. R. E. Seales showed a master hand in this department as well as in flowers, receiving first prize in a spirited competition in lemon pie. Mrs. Grace Fenwick received first for ginger cookies, chocolate cake and rolls. Mrs. Cora Fursell got a first prize on mince pie and angel food cake. Mrs. August Keel was first on sunshine cake. Mrs. Wade Woodruff first on devil food cake. Mrs. C. E. Parker first on chocolate cookies, and Mrs. E. A. Landmark second prizes on raisin and apple pie. Mrs. Charles Wade receiving first honors on apple pie. Mrs. Chris Julsteth received first award on a collection of berries. Mrs. Fred Jones first on current and raspberry jelly, and Mrs. Nellie Wallace first on plum jelly.

Specimens of Fancy Work.

The fancy work exhibit in charge of Mrs. Maude Wall was large, embracing many fine specimens of work, but owing to the many entries only a few of the awards were completed on Thursday. The following are some of the prizes decided late Thursday afternoon: For best embroidered bed spread, Mrs. Alton Sprecher; pillow slips with crocheted lace, Mrs. Hesperanz; luncheon set with crocheted trimmings, B. M. Sexton; also first on embroidered handkerchiefs; child's dress, Ida Kuehn; luncheon cloth and napkins, Mrs. F. S. Lewis; crocheted centerpiece, Mrs. Ed. Jensen; Edgerton; crocheted yoke, Mrs. Frank Boughton; embroidered child's dress and pillow slips, Mrs. L. D. Cannon, Janesville. The judges in this department were: Mrs. W. J. Clark and Miss Florence Bonnell. The fine arts exhibit under Miss Madge Robinson was exceptionally

COUNTY SHOW HERD WINS AT CO. FAIR

Walcowis Olli e Hylaard Senior Champion.—Finish Judging Friday.

Holsteins in the Rock county show herd received their first showing (test) Thursday afternoon when A. J. Crammer started judging dairy cattle at the Rock county fair, Evansville. With but one exception the show herd entries won the blue annexed all four championships.

Youths Enter Exhibits.

The youths' department with Mrs. V. A. Axell as superintendent made a fine showing, giving commendable exhibits in nearly all classes. For a large bouquet, Marjorie Hooper received first, and Pauline Munns, second. Pola Norton was first and Lillian Axell second in the premium bread-making, according to results, while both Noyes was a master hand at chocolate cake and Marjorie Glasser was adept at apple cake. The latter could sew as well as bake and received first award on a pair of bloomers and a dainty lavender night gown. June Patterson receiving second, Lillian Gavoy also received first on a sample of button holes, and a fancy apron. Evelyn Ballard had first on handkerchiefs, with Bernard Barker first on embroidered pillow and Evelyn Heffel, second. Heister Sharp had a very pretty table runner of linen and blue gingham, while E. L. Gavoy had a choice collection of nuts and Lorraine Hukker had a well made, good looking middy blouse on display. Evelyn George took first on canned peaches and John Noyes first on cranberry jelly. A splendid exhibit was put on by the Evansville schools in the educational department, with Miss Amy Perry in charge, on the subject of which can be noted in the booklets. The life contributed by the 4th grade, Evelyn Ballard received first award and Genevieve Murphy, 2nd. In the postcard contest, Mrs. H. Graves, first, and E. Nance, second. Miller received first on a fruit subject and Marvin Holmerson second on an automobile.

County Farm Wins.

An age-old owned by J. A. Craig was given the senior champion honors for females and a home-bred senior yearling from the Rock county farm was made junior champion. The county farm heifer is developing into an outstanding show animal for the ringside agreed this heifer would win the test in most any show ring.

Walcowis Olli e Hylaard has been entered for the sweepstakes championship and will be pitted against the little folks were given a race in every class. In the opening class for age bulls there were four entries, three in the county show herd and one entered by John Elmer. The question was, "Olli e" would stay first in line but it was some time before Judge Cramer placed the Honiestad bred three year old, owned by W. T. Hunt, first in second position and St. Echo Sylvia Leeds, owned by A. G. Russell, Janesville in third place. The champion showed to an advantage for once in the ring, posed like a statue.

Two Year Old Class.

In the two year old class Prince Denver Creamline, owned by Kraft and Perigo, twice junior champion of Wisconsin, went to the head of the line and stayed there for the blue ribbon. The entry of E. L. Benedict placed second with a herd sire from the School for the Blind third.

In the senior bull calf class the Craig entries in the county herd went first with calves from the School for the Blind, second and a herd individual from the Milbrand Brothers herd in third place.

In the junior calf class the county herd entry of John Goldthorpe went first with entries by Elmer Spurlock and Paul Elmer, second and third.

Have 10 Entries.

There were 10 entries in the age cow class and the Craig entry went first. Goldthorpe's entry from the School for the Blind placed second and a three year old of Ward Brothers, fourth.

In the two year old class the Craig heifer went first with an entry from the School for the Blind second, and a county herd animal from the Goldthorpe farm third. There was some question as to the merits of the third animal for the ringside had this heifer picked for the blue.

In the senior yearling class the county farm heifer was outstanding and was followed by the Craig heifer and one entered by Herman Penrick. In the junior yearling class the county farm heifer, a daughter of the first, went first with John Elmer second and the heifer of Edith Clark, champion calf club girl, in third position. In the senior calf class a splendid entry from the Milbrand herd went into first position and deserved the blue. John Elmer was second and Julius, Evansville, third.

ITALY WILL PAY DEBT TO AMERICA

Mussolini Promises That Loans Shall be Repaid to United States.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
(Special cable dispatch, copyright 1923, by Janesville Gazette.)

Rome—Italy, unlike France, has promised to pay her war debt to America irrespective of whether or any reparations are forthcoming from the enemy powers. Italy is weaker from an economic viewpoint than France, but she makes no conditions about her promise to pay.

"The Italian government," said Premier Mussolini to the writer, "has declared it will meet the obligations completely because we have set our signature down and are not advocates of the scrap of paper theory. Naturally, as the United States has given relatively good terms to Great Britain, Italy expects to be given terms proportionate to her economic strength."

In other words, the Italians wish to pay but they want the terms made so the debt can be distributed over a period of years consistent with their capacity to pay. They also want interest charges that are not burdensome simply because the period of payment may be lengthy.

Debt to America: Several months ago the idea of Italy paying anything on her debt to America was usually dismissed as fantastic. Overwhelmed with debts and torn asunder by internal difficulties, the prospect of paying any foreign debt was not worth discussing. The American government, in the last few months, however, has been able to settle its terms with Great Britain and this has stimulated American ambassadors elsewhere to urge other countries to follow Great Britain's example. Italy recognizes that first of all she must regain the confidence of American capitalists, and that a step in the direction of paying the war debt would make a profound impression. As an instance of this policy of carrying favor with America, there has been a good deal of winning and dining of American business men who might be presumed to exert their influence when they get home from their travels.

Words spoken by the American government through Ambassador Washburn Child supporting the Mussolini government come as a natural sequel to the latter's promises to pay her debts. There is no doubt that Mussolini has profited immensely by the words of Child as well as by the words of President Harding which were reproduced in every Italian newspaper from one end of the Italian boot to the other.

Externally the Italian government under Mussolini also is playing a shrewd diplomatic game. Originally the Italians were inclined to favor their Latin associates. Mussolini likes France for sentimental reasons as that country harbored him as a socialist, fleeing from the Italian police; he needed an asylum.

France in Ruhr: But France's Ruhr policy has injured Italy's economic position by depriving her of coal. Moreover, Italy being weak in manufactures wants to buy cheap and the virtual suppression of German trade has compelled Italy to buy from countries where the rate of exchange is higher.

So today Italy is veering close to Great Britain and even closer to the United States. Mussolini's entente with Washington will unquestionably have an effect on the European situation and perhaps on American foreign policy as well when the hour of reckoning on German reparations finally is reached.

RUHR BECOMING RURAL: Essen, Germany—Essen has begun to sprout on the tops of thousands of freight cars lying idle in the railroad yards of the Ruhr. Many of them are filled with merchandise and have not turned a wheel since the French and Belgians marched into the industrial area last January.

BANK STOCK TAX MAY CAUSE ROW

Banks Expected to Enter Protests at Review Board Meeting Aug. 27.

Janesville is threatened with a loss of some $15,000 in 1923 taxes and the removal of from $800,000 to $700,000 from its assessment roll as a result of protest action expected to be started by the national banks when the city board of review holds its hearing Aug. 27 on 1923 assessments.

Although neither of the two national banks here has as yet filed a formal protest against this year's assessments on capital stock, City Assessor Frank L. Smith says he has been informed informally that they will do so. There also exists the possibility of state banks entering similar objections.

Assessor Gets State Orders. City Assessor Smith, together with other city assessors of Wisconsin, has received instructions from the state tax commission to continue to assess national bank stock the same as in former years, despite a recent decision of the United States supreme court in a Virginia case, holding that national bank stock was not subject to this form of taxation. According to the decision, a value for the stock of every national and state bank in Wisconsin and these figures are now on the assessment roll being drawn up by him.

A similar row is in progress in Milwaukee where 47 banks are making protests of injustice to the board of review, which should they be successful, would result in a loss of $500,000 in taxes yearly and the removal of $20,000,000 from the assessed valuation of Milwaukee.

1921-22 Taxes Compromised. It was only a few weeks ago that the city council effected a compromise with the two Janesville national banks of 1921 and 1922 taxes, which had been paid under protest. It was agreed that only one-half of the total sum for the two years would be collected by the city. This was in line with settlements made in other Wisconsin cities, as recommended by the state tax commission.

While this compromise held good for those two years, it has no bearing on 1923 taxes due in January, 1924, and as a result the same old fight is up again with the board of review in for one of its most important sessions in history to reach a decision on the matter.

No Figures Available. Although there is as usual great interest among city officials as to what the total 1923 assessment will be, City Assessor Smith says he has no figures available at a present time to indicate whether there will be an increase or decrease. The 1922 assessed valuation of Janesville was $28,551,318.

ARNOLD TRIAL MAY LAST THREE WEEKS

Dougherty Ready for Opening of Case at Superior on Tuesday.

W. H. Dougherty, United States district attorney, Janesville, announced Friday that the trial of Victor E. Arnold, president of the former Madison Bond company, and indicted by a federal grand jury on 32 counts for alleged misuse of the mails, will be begun Tuesday, the opening day of the July term of the United States district court at Superior. The trial is expected to last for three weeks, unless something unforeseen happens.

Mr. Arnold's defense is not known and his attorneys have not yet forwarded to the United States marshal's office subpoenas for service on defense witnesses. The government will call between 75 and 100 witnesses.

For three weeks, Mr. Dougherty and his staff have been engaged in preparing for the case. United States Marshal W. R. Cheilis left Madison, Tuesday, by auto to serve subpoenas in the case. He will continue to Superior where he will remain for the court session. Mr. Dougherty and his force will leave Janesville, Sunday night, for Superior, and Chief Deputy Marshal Frank Hell will drive up Saturday.

Albert Marcus, charged with forging a government check at Beloit, will be taken to Superior, Sunday night, by Deputy Marshal Will Touton. He will be arraigned in court Monday before Judge Claude Z. Luse. Marcus was arrested at the Waupun prison gates after serving 21 months for forgery.

John E. Tillian, a former federal prohibition agent, charged with a gambling extortion at Hurley, will be placed on trial after the Arnold case is closed. He is awaiting trial in jail in Madison.

The William Sherman bootlegging case is set for Aug. 27 at Superior.

HARDING DIES

Mrs. Harding Was Only Person With Husband at Time

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Presidential Headquarters, Palace Hotel, San Francisco.—President Warren G. Harding died almost instantaneously at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening of a stroke of apoplexy.

There was no warning. In his weakened condition he could not withstand the stroke.

Vice President Calvin Coolidge was at once notified at his summer home at Plymouth, Vermont and will succeed to the presidency.

Mrs. Harding was at the bedside of the president and reading to him. There was no one else in the room at the time. She noted that a shudder passed over the president and that he seemed to be in pain. She rushed to the door and called Lieut. Commander Boone of the president's staff. He summoned physicians, but the president was dead. The stroke had been fatal in his weakened condition. It was just a week since he had been taken ill.

Brig. Gen. Sawyer, alone of the attending physicians, was within immediate call. The president had been getting on so well that the thought of danger had been farthest away from all the thoughts of the whole party.

Secretary Wallace issued a statement shortly after the death of the president that while it was thought the disease had been conquered and that medicine and prayer and a splendid constitution had won the battle, a stroke of apoplexy had taken the president without a second of warning to those with him and before a physician could be called or the members of the party summoned.

Calvin Coolidge, New President of the United States

SCENES IN LIFE OF THE PRESIDENT

Characteristic poses in which President Harding has been snapped since his nomination for the presidency in Chicago in 1920. Upper left, Harding signing the peace treaty with Germany; top center, Harding and Governor Boone, snapped during his Alaskan visit; upper right, in the Kansas wheat fields; at the left below can be seen Harding taking recreation on horseback and on the golf links; lower center, addressing congress; lower right, Harding and Vice President Coolidge, conferring; Harding on his front porch during the 1920 campaign and Harding waving his hat to assembled crowds during election campaign. Others show Harding in various poses.

It was announced in an official statement issued at 8:50 that Mrs. Harding had withstood the shock of her husband's death better than any other member of the party.

The first words when she realized that the president had passed away were "I am not going to break down."

Another statement said that they knew from the beginning of the president's illness that he would recover and expressed no doubt about it at any time. But on the other hand another statement said that Mrs. Harding expressed confidence from the beginning that the president would recover though she was aware of the great danger. She continued to be the bravest of the group.

Another official statement issued at 8:15 said that Vice President Coolidge had been notified of the president's death and that the message had been signed by Attorney General

Daugherty and Secretaries Hoover, Wallace and Work.

The statement to the public said that with the passing of Mr. Harding the office of president devolves upon Calvin Coolidge, a man, silent in nature, but strong in emergencies.

The official statement about the death of the president issued by the physicians said that he died at 7:30 from cerebral hemorrhage. The end came peacefully and without warning. Thus passes away a president of the United States, loved by a nation, by the people of his own state, and the third president from the state of Ohio to die in office—two of whom were assassinated, Garfield and McKinley.

Warren G. Harding is the sixth president to pass away while in office, the others having been William Henry Harrison, Zachary Taylor, Abraham Lincoln, James A. Garfield, William McKinley and now Warren G. Harding.

FLY FLAGS HALF MAST

As a mark of respect for our late President, Warren G. Harding, who gave his life in the service of his country, all business houses are asked to fly their flags at half mast, from Friday morning until after the funeral services.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE,
Oscar N. Nelson, Mgr.

SKETCH OF PRESIDENT HARDING'S LIFE

Warren G. Harding has always been a resident of Ohio, which state he represented as United States senator from 1914 to 1920. In private business life he was publisher of the Marion (Ohio) Star.

He was born on a farm, near the village of Blooming Grove, Morrow county, O., Nov. 2, 1875, the oldest of eight children. His father, George N. Harding, was a country doctor, whose forebears came from Scotland. Before going to Ohio, the Hardings were residents of Pennsylvania, where some of them were massacred by Indians. Others fought in the Revolutionary war. The mother of Warren, Mrs. Phoebe Dickinson, was descended from an old-time Holland Dutch family, the Van Kicks.

In his youth, Warren Harding, lived the life of a farmer boy, attending the village school until 14 years of age, when he entered Ohio Central college of Iberia, from which he was graduated. As editor of the college paper he first displayed a talent for journalism. He was obliged to stop school now and then and earn the money with which to pursue his college course. At one time he cut corn, at another painted barns, and at still another drove a team and helped to grade the roadbed of a new railway. At 17 he taught a district school and played a horn in the village band.

At odd times he worked in the village printing office, in time becoming an expert typesetter and later a linotype operator. He is a practical pressman and a job printer, and as a "make-up man" is said to have had few equals. The last place he carried as a senator is the old printers' rule he used when he was sticking type.

Calvin Coolidge, New President, Silent But Strong

Washington, D. C.—Calvin Coolidge will succeed to the presidency of the United States as soon as the oath of office can be administered. He was at once notified from San Francisco of the death of the president.

Official Washington was stunned tonight by the news of Mr. Harding's death, coming as it did, when all the news from the bedside had been favorable.

LIFE OF CALVIN COOLIDGE

Calvin Coolidge, although by profession a lawyer, entered public service almost immediately upon leaving college.

First elected alderman of Northampton, Mass., his home since he became a voter and progressed steadily upward through the offices of city solicitor, mayor, membership in the house and of the senate of Massachusetts, serving as president of the latter body, and then as lieutenant governor until elected governor, and in 1920 vice president of the United States.

In the 20 years with these duties his time was almost exclusively devoted to public affairs. Only incidentally did he turn to the law, although he always maintained an office with an associate at Northampton.

He was born in Plymouth, Vt., July 4, 1872, of Puritan ancestors.

He left the farm in 1891 for Amherst college and graduated in 1896. Immediately upon leaving college he went to Northampton to study law and finally settled there.

It was Mr. Coolidge's common sense, his insight into legislative tactics and his mentality which first attracted to him the attention of political leaders. The late Senator W. Murray Crane, who was a resident of Coolidge's congressional district, was among the first to note these qualities, and he resolved to utilize the first opportunity to project Mr. Coolidge into the national political arena.

The dramatic events of the Boston police strike, in which the governor took a firm and unyielding stand for law and order, focused upon him in 1913 national attention and made of him almost overnight a national figure. For a while he was talked of prominently as a presidential possibility.

As vice president he has become a regular attendant at cabinet meetings, a custom established for the first time in his case.

Mr. Coolidge married Miss Grace Goodhue, whom he first met in Northampton as a teacher, in 1905, and they have two sons.

The first news of the president's death came to Janesville over the radio and was telephoned to the Gazette by Richard Malone of 1215 Mineral Point avenue. The Associated Press from Chicago, over long distance phone, followed by confirmation and story of the national tragedy. Edward Carpenter of East street, received radio message about the same time.

The Riddle of the Spinning Wheel

By M. E. and T. W. HANSHEW

Being an Exploit in the Career of Hamilton Cleek, Detective
Copyright, 1922, by Doubleday, Page & Co., and published by arrangement with the McClure Newspaper Syndicate of New York City.

SYNOPSIS. "No. Not a single idea of it, Mr. Deland. That I swear," she returned with emphasis. "Those boots are undoubtedly Captain Macdonald's, as you say, there is the name inside. But they have not been used by him for a long time. It was nearly six months ago, I think, that he left them here, after a meet in our grounds, and before Father had found out anything about our coming or going, or of the fact that he had left them here. I told him I loved to see them with the other men's boots—Ross' and Father's and Cyril's and Mr. Tavish's in our dressing-room, where the groom, Jarvis, always takes care of them and keeps them oiled, when not in use, to prevent them cracking. And so Angus laughed at me, and said they might as well be his own boots, as he was teased me terribly over my babyishness. It may sound silly to you, Mr. Deland, but it meant a lot to me to see those boots there—belonging where I belonged. It was like a peep into the future. And when the trouble with Father came, I wanted them more than ever to keep my heart up. By my knowledge they have never been moved."

"And yet my man Dollops found them under the shrubbery and in this condition this morning—after last night's terrible affair, Miss Dugan," put in Cleek, quietly, keen eyes upon her face. "It certainly looks black for Angus, Mr. Deland," she replied in a frightened voice. "I don't know what I used them. I'll swear it in court, if need be."

"How do you know?" she stopped a moment and sneaked in her breath, and then a sudden look of determination came over her face.

"Because," she said steadily, "he was coming to meet me in the grounds last night, as he had often enough before. We could never see each other in daylight, as Father had forbidden him the house, and so we stole our meetings at night, under the old oak tree at the bottom of the first lawn. You can't see it from the house, as that hedge of yew leaves it entirely hidden."

TODAY'S RECIPES.

Apple-Graham Porridge.—Slice one apple to small thin slices and cook in one pint water five minutes. Then stir in Graham flour as you would macaroni, adding one-fourth teaspoon salt. Cook ten minutes longer, covered. Serve with top milk and sugar.

Bread Sponge Cake.—One cup of bread crumbs, one cup sugar, three-quarters cup milk, one egg, one-half cup flour, one teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon cinnamon. When nearly done spread with a mixture of butter, sugar and cinnamon.

Filled Cookies.—One cup sugar, one-half cup shortening, one-half cup sweet milk, one egg, three cups flour sifted with three teaspoons baking powder, vanilla. One-half pound dates chopped, one cup raisins (chopped), one cup sugar, three tablespoons flour, two cups hot water. Cook all together till thick. Put between two sheets of paper and press edges together. These can be frosted with a plain powdered sugar frosting. Other filling can be used for these cookies. Fillings of jam or jelly are nice.

SUGGESTIONS.

Turkish Towels for Beds.—Instead of having the quilted pads for small babies buy a hot yard of ribbed sheeting and cut it in half, making two 18-inch squares. Then buy two Turkish towels, ordinary size, fold them in half and sew them on each side, three inches from the edge. Sew snaps on the end and then slip over of rubber sheeting in and snap together. You will have two very nice pads which can be laundered by slipping the covers off the towels, much easier than the heavy quilted pads.

Ironing Lace.—To iron rows of ruffled lace put a hot iron over it once to iron it flat. Then with the fingers pull and stretch the lace until it is ruffled again. This is so much quicker than ironing it in place.

Hanging Blankets.—When hanging blankets or crocheted spreads on line, if instead of hanging straight they are pulled a little they will do away with wrinkles when they are pinned.

Gingham or Muslin Curtains.—Plain bleached muslin curtains may be made more attractive by applying them with checked gingham. Cut two strips 9 by 2 inches and two strips 7 by 2 1/2 inches and place them at right angles in the bottom corner of each curtain on the inside, and fasten them with small black running stitches. Then cut a long narrow diamond and place that in the middle of the right angle. A dresser scarf can be made to match the curtains, the colors in the wall paper repeated in the gingham.

Greenville, Pa.—"I took your medicine through the Change of Life and it did wonders for me. I was down in bed when I started to take it, and I was so nervous and weak that everything would get black and I could not see a hot iron over it once to iron it flat. Then with the fingers pull and stretch the lace until it is ruffled again. This is so much quicker than ironing it in place."

"I had the itching piles, also high blood pressure. I saw Peterson's Change of Life and I used one box and a half of Peterson's Ointment for itching piles and piles disappeared, also the high blood pressure. 45 cents a box at all druggists. Advertisement."

MOTION PICTURE PEOPLE ARE INTERESTING!

Thomas Meighan

Bebe Daniels, 'Found' by Cecil B. DeMille, Advanced by William

FIRST Brother Cecil found her, and then Brother William elected to continue her education.

This is the story of Bebe Daniels' career in pictures, told in a single sentence.

For it was Cecil B. DeMille who first lifted her from the ranks of a comedy leading woman to the dignity of dramatic roles. And it has been William DeMille who has been putting the recent polish on her successful work.

If Bebe hadn't happened to be dining in a certain restaurant on the particular night of the year that Cecil B. DeMille elected to dine there, she might still be playing leads opposite Harold Lloyd. He observed her across the room, inquired and found her name, and the following day offered her a chance to play the Babylonian courtesan in "Male and Female." Then came a real "acting part" in "Why Change Your Wife?" and later still in "The Affairs of Anatol."

Now William DeMille has taken her under his tutelage with the result that the combined DeMille training is rapidly producing striking results. In "Nice People" the talented Miss Daniels gave a most convincing characterization; now comes William DeMille with the claim that in "The World's Applause" the screen world is to see a new and even more talented actress.

"The World's Applause" is a story of the theatrical world, written by Clara Beranger and played by a cast that is headed by Bebe Daniels, Lewis Stone, Harrison Ford and Kathlyn Williams. Bebe Daniels plays the role of a star of the stage—a role that her experience as a stage actress has well fitted her to play.

"The Covered Wagon" Sets New Standard

BARNUM & BAILEY'S circus is a peep show compared to this one.

It is as clean as your grandmother's favorite anecdote.

It is the story of the making of America, historically correct, told as accurately, with as careful attention to detail as though Jim Bridger had been the camera man and K. L. Carson the director.

It is just the thing the fathers and mothers have been asking the motion picture to bring them—a great story of America, of absorbing interest to every member of the family, inspiring and of untold educational value.

All the time that it is teaching it is entertaining—painting astounding pictures of miles of ox-drawn covered wagons rumbling over the desert toward the beautiful mountains beyond. And as these wagons rumble along, there's a thrilling love story being enacted. Love among Indian fights and prairie fires and wild rides over land and through swollen streams and toward the end, the excitement of the news of the gold discovery in California.

They are real human beings, each of the characters in the story. In them you see your great-grandmother and great-grandfather, as they were when they were young and eager for the adventure of pushing the frontier back from the Missouri river to the Pacific ocean.

It isn't just one of those pictures that "every American, old and young, ought to see." It is the picture that they will see. Every kid who sees it will tell his gang about it and they'll all take their folks and go. The Buffalo Bill show had no more thrills than has "The Covered Wagon."

The love story is stronger than I have told it. As I read this over I feel that perhaps this report makes the picture look like a series of fine shots and thrills. It is all of that, but the shots and thrills are logical and only a background for the love story of Lois Wilson and J. Warren Kerrigan.

No actor stands out. Everyone is 100 per cent. Lois Wilson is lovely and Kerrigan makes a handsome hero. The two scouts are splendid character parts.

It's an old axiom that it takes people who have had experiences to portray life. Perhaps that's why it is that when you dig down into the lives of those who entertain by their work on the screen, you find that to them have happened many things not given to persons whose careers have been set on more prosaic roles.

Let's take a typical production as an instance. Let's take "To Have and Have Not," produced by George Fitzmaurice for Paramount and featuring Betty Compson, Bert Lytell and Theodore Kosloff.

Let's start right with the director. George Fitzmaurice's father was a banker. He wanted his son to be a banker. But young George had the wanderlust, he felt the lure of far countries and alien strands. His father wouldn't let him go into the diplomatic service—so he compromised by going to India as a merchant of textiles, jutes, etc. India that an inspiration it was to the young Frenchman! It's bizarre colors inspired him to paint a thing of which he had always been fond. On his father's death he returned to France and eventually came to America. With such a background, that more natural thing than that he should engage in motion pictures, here knowledge of life is so essential.

Plucky Little Betty. And pretty Betty Compson. You couldn't think that sweet face had ever known the pinch of poverty, the blows of tragedy, now would you? And yet it wasn't so many years ago at little Betty's father died, penniless, and the child aided to keep together the souls and bodies of herself and her mother by playing the violin in the orchestra of the Mission Theater, at Salt Lake. There was at time, later, when the then vaudeville player, stranded in San Francisco, for two months worked as a domestic servant, as a nurse girl in a wealthy home, in order to earn enough money to get back to her mother in Salt Lake. And there was that still later time when Betty lost her job in comedies—and for three months was without funds. One night she and her mother didn't have enough to buy dinner—and then Betty found a $10 gold piece in the gutter! This bought food—and three days later she got the position which led to "The Miracle Man"—and stardom.

Theodore Kosloff? Naturally a man who danced before kings would have something of interest to add to this tale. At eight he entered the Imperial Ballet School. Fellow pupils were Mordkin, Nijinsky and Pavlova. It was only recently that he received word that the Moscow bolsheviks had returned $50,000 worth of jewels stolen from his safety deposit box in 1914. Included were a gold watch with the Russian eagles and rare moonstone cut-links from Czar Nicholas, silver plate for twenty-four from Grand Duke Vladimir, ruby stickpin from Grand Duke Sergius, and emerald cuff links from Lady Evelyn Guinness. It wasn't an easy road, that of Kosloff's to the heights of the dancers. Broke in Barcelona, Spain—he danced for his dinner in a cafe. Five years later he danced before the king in the great opera house of that city. He knew King Edward VII., Kerensky, Tschekov, the Kaiser, the czar, Tschalkowsky, Tolstol, scores and scores of world-famous figures. He knows life—how the poor act, how nobles act. Naturally it was obvious that he could interpret correctly the role of the dandy and villain, "Lord Carnal" in "To Have and Have Not."

A Veteran Player. And a man who saw Lincoln shot. There are still a few who saw that cataclysm from the seats of Ford's Theater, but W. J. Ferguson alone among the living, was actually on the stage when Booth so dramatically interrupted the performance of "Our American Cousin." Fifty-seven years ago, one of the Deans of the profession—and practically all of that time has been spent in making people laugh, as he is essentially a comedian. His comic abilities are well placed in the role of "Jeremy Sparrow," the fussy old servant who adds so much of humor to Mary Johnson's much-loved romantic novel.

Bert Lytell is an actor, and the son, the grandson and the great-grandson of actors. Acting runs back through his family for many generations. He has played "Little Eva" in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and villains in melodrama. He needed a wash tub to make "thunder" for "Uncle Tom's Cabin" one night and borrowed it from a reluctant Chinaman at the point of a prop pistol. He went broke in an Atlantic coast port Frank O'Connor, Director Fitzmaurice's assistant, used to manage a negro minstrel show. He considered James of the story? He's probably going to appear in the picture.

Young Canadian Girl to Fore

LIM, blonde, five feet one, and cute, that's Pauline Garon, the latest meteor of the film world, has sprung into fame since her first choice by Cecil B. DeMille to play one of the "biggest roles" in "Adam's Rib."

Little Miss Garon is a French-Canadian. She didn't learn to talk English until she was ten and still retains a decided but very pleasing French accent. She was born in Montreal, Canada, one September 9 and is of combined French and Irish parentage. Her father was Pierre, a mother Victoria. Her father was employed in the postal service and later entered the insurance business which he attained a success.

Pauline was sent to the Sacred Heart Convent in Montreal where she remained under strict discipline for seven and one-half years. Always, however, there was an urge for expression, a desire to pour out the vivacity, the unquenchable enthusiasm, the "pep," to express it in a word, that is so distinctively part and parcel of this new whirlwind of the cinema.

So one bright day, she ran away from home. No reason at all, she just wanted to see a bit of the world and her spirit didn't rock of the difficulties attendant on a young girl traveling alone. Anyhow that has never bothered her, as the diminutive Garon is a raging lion to those who give offense. There's a lot of fighting spirit packed in the little body.

She landed at the Hotel Commodore, New York, took a $12 a day room, and had $1.25 left in her purse. She blithely wired home: "Send me $50," and the next day she sallied forth to the theatrical producers, and Her beauty won her a quick job in "Lonely Romeo," in the chorus, and for two and a half years, gradually she climbed up through "Buddies," and "Lilies of the Field."

Then she went into pictures, starting with Dorothy Gish in "Remodeling a Husband," in rather a minor part. When she did "The Man from Glogarry," with a Canadian company, "Attention focussed on her when she appeared with Owen Moore in "Reported Missing" and burst into a chorus of "Who is She?" when she scored an instantaneous success with Richard Barthelmess in "Sonny." It was this picture, a bubbling joyful role for her, that caught the attention of Cecil B. DeMille.

Her rise has been sure and has taken less than four years. It's a triumph of personality, the appearance of this young Canadian meteor.
